JOE LACOB
CO-EXECUTIVE CHAIRMAN & CEO

Golden State Co-Executive & CEO Joe Lacob begins his 16th year at the helm of the corporate entity that includes the Golden State Warriors (NBA), Golden State Valkyries (WNBA), Santa Cruz Warriors (NBA G League), Thrive City, Chase Center and other assets. Lacob serves on the NBA Board of Governors and is a member of the league's Planning Committee and Labor Committee.

Under Lacob's guidance, the Warriors have achieved numerous milestones, established many NBA records and enjoyed one of the most successful decades in the history of the sport. The Warriors won four NBA championships (2015, 2017, 2018, 2022) in an eight-year span, joining the Boston Celtics, Chicago Bulls and Los Angeles Lakers as the only teams to accomplish this feat, while making six appearances in the NBA Finals over that period. With five consecutive Finals appearances from 2015-19, the Warriors joined the Celtics of the 1950s and 1960s as the only teams ever to do so. The Warriors matched the Celtics for the best-ever record over a six-season span in league history (373-119, .758) and, with three titles in four years, joined the Celtics, Bulls and Lakers as the only NBA franchises to win three championships in four seasons. Overall, the Warriors have advanced to the NBA Finals in six of Lacob's 15 seasons.

In Lacob's fifth season as owner in 2014-15, the Warriors ended a 40-year championship drought (dating back to 1975) and followed that title-winning campaign by posting the best single-season record in NBA history in 2015-16 (73-9). From 2012-13 to 2018-19, the Warriors made seven consecutive playoff appearances, the longest postseason streak in franchise history. In fact, prior to those seven seasons, the club had only made the playoffs once in the previous 18 years.

The franchise's success in recent years has also extended to the business side. In December of 2019, the Warriors were named professional sports' "Franchise of the Decade" by the Sports Business Journal (SBJ), an award that encompasses all 123 teams in the NBA, NFL, MLB and NHL. The award-winning sports business publication also bestowed "Sports Team of the Year" honors to the Warriors in 2014 and 2016 in recognition of the organization's innovative and successful business practices. This marked the first time that any professional team had won this prestigious award more than once (the organization was also a finalist for the award in 2017 and 2018).

Additionally, under Lacob's leadership, the Warriors were named the winner of the Entrepreneurial Company of the Year (ENCORE) Award in 2016 by the Stanford University Graduate School of Business, recognizing the organization's entrepreneurial spirit in redefining sports management, pioneering the use of sports analytics in the NBA and adopting new technologies that have transformed the fan experience. The Warriors became the first sports organization to win the ENCORE Award, which has been presented annually since 1982 and recognizes companies from around the world, including such recent winners as Google (2004), Apple (2005) and Amazon (2010).

In addition to the Warriors' organization-wide honors, Lacob was named the 2016 recipient of the Sports Executive of the Year award by Sports Business Journal. He was also named one of the Bay Area's Most Admired CEOs by the San Francisco Business Times in November of 2015.

Since making a then-record-setting $450-million bid to purchase his hometown NBA club and assuming control of the team on November 12, 2010, Lacob has been the driving force behind many of the creative changes that have transpired with the organization, including several major announcements, prominent personnel additions and an emphasis on transparency. Additionally, since its inception in 2012, the revamped Golden State Community Foundation has awarded over $48 million in impact to the Bay Area, including $23.8 million in yearly educational grants to various Bay Area organizations.

In October 2015, the Warriors completed the purchase of 12 acres of land in San Francisco's Mission Bay neighborhood and, in January 2017, broke ground on Chase Center, the team's 100% privately-financed, state-of-the-art sports and entertainment venue. Less than three years later, Chase Center celebrated its ribbon-cutting ceremony on September 3, 2019, and Lacob's vision of opening the doors to the first-ever arena in San Francisco became a reality. The dynamic 18,064-seat arena hosts Warriors basketball, concerts, cultural events, family shows, conventions and other activities, totaling over 150 events a year. Located in the heart of Mission Bay, the 11-acre district features two office buildings, 100,000 square feet of retail, close to 30 unique retail spaces and over three acres of publicly accessible plazas and open space. In September of 2020, after one year of operation, Chase Center was named "Sports Facility of the Year" by the Sports Business Journal. Celebrating its fifth anniversary in September 2024, Chase Center has generated an estimated $4.2 billion for the San Francisco economy since opening in 2019, according to an economic impact report. Chase Center has hosted numerous concerts and events, including the 2025 NBA All-Star Game and 2025 Laver Cup.

In addition to the Warriors, Lacob has engineered the arrival of the expansion Valkyries, the 13th WNBA franchise. In 2025, the Valkyries became the first WNBA expansion team to reach the playoffs in their inaugural season. Their 23 regular season wins set a new league record for the most wins by an expansion team in its first season, surpassing the previous record of 17. Additionally, the Valkyries set an all-time WNBA record for average (18,064) and total home attendance (397,408), selling out all 22 regular season home games.

Success has not only been limited to the Golden State Warriors and Valkyries, but has also extended to their G League affiliate, the Santa Cruz Warriors, as well. The Sea Dubs won the 2015 G League championship, was named G League Franchise of the Year four times (2017-18, 2020-21, 2021-22 and 2023-24), and have a home sellout streak since 2014-15.

During his first full off-season with the organization (summer of 2011), Lacob recruited two of the most experienced, successful and respected individuals in NBA circles to join the franchise, landing Hall of Famer and basketball icon Jerry West as an executive board member, and hiring longtime league and team executive—and 2018 Hall of Fame inductee—Rick Welts as president and chief operating officer. Additionally, Lacob played a significant role in the hiring of Bob Myers and Steve Kerr. A successful sports agent before joining the Warriors, Myers worked in the front office for 12 seasons, his last seven as the club's president of basketball operations/general manager. Former NBA player, TV color analyst, and Phoenix Suns General Manager, Kerr was hired as head coach in May 2014. Myers was named NBA Executive of the Year following the Warriors championship seasons of 2014-15 and 2016-17; Kerr was named NBA Coach of the Year following the 2015-16 season.

Lacob's NBA and professional sports experience dates back over two decades, including a five-year tenure as minority investor of the Boston Celtics, where he served on the basketball committee. He earned his first NBA championship ring in 2008 with the Celtics before selling his minority stake to purchase the Warriors.

In 1987, Lacob began his career at Kleiner Perkins Caufield & Byers, based in Menlo Park, Calif. Though still a strategic advisor to the firm, he relinquished his managing partner role in order to pursue his lifelong goal of owning and operating an NBA franchise. In his role as a venture capitalist, he led investments in over 50 start-up companies across multiple fields in life sciences and medical technologies, the internet and energy.

Lacob earned a bachelor's degree in Biological Sciences from the University of California-Irvine, a master's degree in public health (epidemiology) from UCLA and an MBA from the Stanford Graduate School of Business. He credits his master's degree in epidemiology (biostatistics) with providing him a background in statistics that helped drive his passion for sports. It also played a role in his decision to invest in Sportsline—one of the first sports internet sites—and one of Lacob's earliest sports success stories. He was also a primary investor and pioneer of the American Basketball League, a professional women's basketball league that eventually succumbed to the WNBA. Lacob continues as one of the original partners in the Pebble Beach Company, an effort formed to bring the historic Pebble Beach resort and golf course back to long-term American ownership. Additionally, Lacob has been involved with Stanford basketball for over 30 years and is a fixture in his courtside seats at Maples Pavilion. Lacob currently serves on the Board of Directors of two public companies, Align Technology and NeuroPace, as well as several other privately-held companies.

In recent years, Lacob has been involved in industry organizations including the American Heart Association and the AHA Roundtable. He has also been very active at Stanford University, serving on advisory boards at the medical center, business school and athletic department. Lacob's philanthropic interests focus on education, both in the community and with universities. In 2014, he gifted $1 million to Washington University in St. Louis to establish a new sports management program at the Olin Business School. He has also provided scholarships to a number of high potential academic and athletic high school and college students in need, and has funded both a GSB professorship and the building of the Lacob Sports Medicine Center at Stanford.

An avid golfer, Lacob has been a longtime participant in the AT&T National Pro-Am at Pebble Beach. He plays in regular pick-up basketball games at least twice weekly at Stanford, doing so for the last 30-plus years.

PETER GUBER
CO-EXECUTIVE CHAIRMAN

Peter Guber, a prominent figure in the sports and entertainment industry for more than 35 years, enters his 16th season as owner and co-executive chairman of the Golden State Warriors. Under his leadership since 2010, the Warriors have enjoyed immense success, highlighted by four NBA Championships (2015, 2017, 2018, 2022), six Western Conference titles (2015-2019, 2022) and the recording of the greatest single-season record in NBA history (73-9 in 2015-16). Off the court, the Warriors were named "Franchise of the Decade" by the Sports Business Journal (SBJ) in December 2019, an award that encompasses all 123 teams in the NBA, NFL, MLB, and NHL. The award-winning sports business publication also bestowed "Sports Team of the Year" honors to the Warriors in 2014 and 2016 in recognition of the organization's innovative and successful business practices. This marked the first time that any professional team had won this prestigious award more than once (the organization was also a finalist for the award in 2017 and 2018).

In addition to the Warriors, Guber owns a wealth of experience in sports and location-based entertainment. One of his core principles is the importance of enhancing every aspect of the fan experience, from entrance to exit. With that philosophy as a driving force, on January 17, 2017, the Warriors broke ground on Chase Center, the organization's 100% privately financed, state-of-the-art sports and entertainment complex in San Francisco's Mission Bay neighborhood. Less than 32 months later, on September 6, 2019, Chase Center opened its doors, immediately becoming one of the crown jewels around the world, and the first-ever arena in the City of San Francisco. A year after its opening (September 2020), Chase Center was named "Sports Facility of the Year" by the Sports Business Journal. In 2025, Chase Center hosted the NBA All-Star Game and the Laver Cup.

One of the most successful executives and entrepreneurs in the entertainment and communications industries, Guber's impressive resume includes serving as the chairman & CEO of Sony Entertainment, president of Columbia Pictures, chairman and CEO of Polygram Entertainment and co-owner and co-chairman of Casablanca Record & Filmworks. Among the films he personally produced or executive produced are "Rain Man" (Academy Award – Best Picture), "Batman," "The Color Purple," "Midnight Express," "Gorillas in the Mist," "The Witches of Eastwick," "Missing," "Flashdance, "Donnie Brasco" and "Sleepy Hollow." Guber's personal movies have earned more than $3 billion worldwide, while also garnering more than 50 Academy Award nominations.

Guber is the founder and CEO of Mandalay Entertainment, a visionary multimedia venture spanning movies, TV, sports, and digital media. Mandalay's feature films include "Soul Surfer," "The Kids Are All Right," and "Bernie." Recently released theatrical films include "Surrounded" from MGM; "Heart of A Lion" which is the miraculous, emotional story of George Foreman overcoming all odds to reboot his life and regain his title of heavyweight boxing champion of the world at 46 years old; and "Air" from Amazon and MGM which stars Ben Affleck and Matt Damon and chronicles the sneaker wars involving Michael Jordan. "The Last Dance," a 10-part documentary which focused on Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls' 1997-98 championship run, was produced by Mandalay Sports Entertainment for ESPN, which Guber won the Emmy and the Producers Guild Award for Best Producer. Guber expanded Mandalay into a national entertainment sports provider, and he currently serves as CEO and Chairman of the Board.

Guber, together with Guggenheim Group and Magic Johnson, acquired the Los Angeles Dodgers in May 2012. Under their ownership, the franchise has won two World Series (2020, 2024), captured 12 National League West division titles in the last 13 years (including eight consecutive from 2013-2020 and a currently four straight from 2022-2025), and made four World Series appearances (2017, 2018, 2020, 2024), including three in a four-year span. He joined Jerry Reinsdorf (Bulls, White Sox) as the only current owners to win both an NBA and MLB title.

In October of 2014, Guber became the owner and executive chairman of Major League Soccer's Los Angeles Football Club (LAFC), which made their debut in 2018 in the Banc of California Stadium, the first new open-air stadium built in the city of Los Angeles since Dodger Stadium in 1962. In 2018, LAFC accomplished the best regular season for an MLS expansion team, earning 57 points. The team then earned a record-breaking 72 points in 2019, winning their first major MLS trophy, the Supporter's Shield, and captured the Western Conference title before their season ended in the conference finals. In 2022, LAFC won the Conference Championship and MLS Cup.

Guber joins Ted Leonsis, Jeff Vinik and Bruce Karsh as one of four co-executive chairmen of aXiomatic, a broad-based esports and gaming company. The company has a majority stake in Team Liquid, a top esports team in the U.S. and Europe with 60 players competing in 14 games. Team Liquid's collective teams have won the most prize money in the history of esports while amassing trophies across different titles and different countries, including winning the 2017 DOTA 2 International Championships, which boasted the largest purse in esports history. Their League of Legends team has won four LCS titles, and their Counter-Strike Global Offensive team was awarded the Intel Grand Slam prize in 2019, a feat achieved in just four tournaments. aXiomatic also has stakes in esports companies Epic Games, ("Fortnite"), Niantic ("Pokemon GO"), Super League Gaming, Gamer Sensei and Bitkraft. In 2024 Team Liquid won the world DOTA Championship.

In June 2017, California Governor Jerry Brown appointed Guber to the prestigious position of Regent of the University of California. Additionally, Guber has been a full professor at UCLA for more than 30 years, teaching at the Anderson School of Management and the School of Theater, Film, Television and Digital Media. He is a member of the UCLA Foundation Board of Trustees, as well as the winner of UCLA's prestigious Service Award for his accomplishments in association with the school. Guber is the founding member of the Board of Advisors for the Center for Managing Enterprises in Media, Entertainment & Sports (MEMES) at the UCLA Anderson School of Management.

A noted author, Guber's third book, Tell To Win – Connect, Persuade, and Triumph with the Hidden Power of Story, was published by Crown Business and became an instant #1 New York Times, Amazon, and Wall Street Journal bestseller. The book is in its 18th printing.

Guber was recruited by Columbia Pictures out of NYU's Graduate School of Business, where he was pursuing an MBA. He also holds a BA, Master of Law and Juris Doctorate degrees. He received his honorary doctorate in Fine Arts from the University of Connecticut; was named Albert Gallatin Fellow at New York University; is a recipient of Syracuse University's George Arents Pioneer Award, the highest honor that can be given to an alumnus, for his distinguished work in film. In 2016, Guber was named Businessperson of the Year by the Los Angeles Business Journal.

MIKE DUNLEAVY
GENERAL MANAGER

Mike Dunleavy begins his third season as the Warriors general manager, and eighth overall with the front office. On June 16, 2023, Dunleavy was promoted to his current position after serving as vice president, basketball operations for the previous two seasons (2021-22 and 2022-23) and two seasons (2019-20 and 2020-21) as the assistant general manager. He originally joined the front office in 2018-19 as a pro scout following a 15-year playing career in the NBA that included four-plus seasons with the Warriors.

Under Dunleavy, the Warriors acquired six-time NBA All-Star forward Jimmy Butler III on February 6, 2025, helping the Warriors finish the 2024-25 regular season with a 48-34 record after a 25-26 mark before Butler III's Warriors debut. The Warriors became the seventh No. 7 seed to advance to the conference semifinals, upsetting the No. 2 Houston Rockets in the 2025 NBA Playoffs Western Conference First Round, 4-3. Another notable trade Dunleavy made came prior to the start of the 2023-24 season when the Warriors acquired 12-time All-Star guard Chris Paul. Trades for draft rights and the selection of players in the NBA Draft have also helped strengthen the team, such as guard Brandin Podziemski (19th in 2024), who was named to the 2023-24 All-Rookie First Team.

Dunleavy was selected by the Warriors with the third overall pick in the 2002 NBA Draft and posted career averages of 11.2 points, 4.3 rebounds and 2.2 assists in 27.7 minutes over 986 regular season games in 15 seasons with the Warriors, Indiana Pacers, Milwaukee Bucks, Chicago Bulls, Cleveland Cavaliers and Atlanta Hawks. With Golden State (2002-03 – 2006-07), Dunleavy appeared in 356 games (225 starts), averaging 10.6 points (43.2 FG%, 34.8 3P%, 76.9 FT%), 4.7 rebounds, 2.5 assists in 27.6 minutes per game.

Prior to the NBA, Dunleavy spent three seasons playing under legendary coach Mike Krzyzewski at Duke University, where he was named Second Team All-American as a junior in 2001-02 and helped the Blue Devils to a national title in 2000-01. Duke posted a record of 95-13 (.880) in his three collegiate seasons, with Dunleavy compiling career averages of 13.2 points, 5.8 rebounds, 2.2 assists and 1.60 steals in 104 games.

Dunleavy and his wife, Sarah, have four children. His father, Mike Dunleavy Sr., is a former NBA player, coach and executive who played 11 seasons and spent 17 seasons as a head coach with the Los Angeles Lakers, Milwaukee Bucks, Portland Trail Blazers and Los Angeles Clippers.

STEVE KERR

Entering his 12th season as the head coach of the Golden State Warriors, Steve Kerr is the winningest head coach in franchise history and has guided the club in its most prolific seasons in NBA history with a list of accomplishments that includes four NBA championships (2015, 2017, 2018, 2022), six NBA Finals appearances (including five-straight from 2015-2019), the NBA's single-season wins record (73), an NBA Coach of the Year award (2015-16), being named one of the 15 Greatest Coaches in NBA history as part of the league's 75th Anniversary Season (2021-22), and five of the six winningest seasons in franchise history. With Golden State's 97-94 win vs. New York on March 15, 2025, Kerr earned his 558th career coaching victory, passing Alvin Attles (557) for the most regular season coaching victories in Warriors franchise history. Kerr owns an overall playoff record of 104-48 (.684), the sixth-most playoff victories in NBA history and the second-highest winning percentage among NBA head coaches all-time that have coached a minimum of 25 postseason games, trailing only Phil Jackson (.688).

Named the 2022-24 USA Basketball Men's National Team head coach, Kerr coached the US squad to a gold medal in the 2024 Olympic Games in Paris, France. Kerr became the fifth NBA coach to lead a team to an Olympic gold medal and only the second to have won at least four NBA championships, joining Gregg Popovich who led Team USA to a 2020 gold medal and five NBA titles. Prior to the 2024 Olympics, Kerr also coached the team at the 2023 FIBA World Cup. Kerr was an assistant coach for the 2017-21 USA Basketball Men's National Team and was part of Popovich's coaching staff for the 2020 Summer Olympic Games in Tokyo, Japan, and the 2019 USA National Team that competed in the FIBA World Cup in China. By helping the USA claim gold at the 2020 Tokyo Olympics, Kerr became the first USA Basketball National Team coach to also have earned a gold medal as a player in a FIBA senior level competition, having won gold at the 1986 World Cup.

Kerr, who won five NBA championships during a 15-year playing career, now owns nine championships as either a player or coach, becoming the first to win at least three NBA titles as a player and three as a coach. Kerr is just the third coach in NBA history to win three championships in his first four seasons at the helm, joining Phil Jackson (1991, 1992, 1993) and John Kundla (1949, 1950, 1952) as the only coaches to do so.

With Kerr at the helm, the Warriors became the first team in NBA history to win at least 65 games in three consecutive campaigns (67 victories in 2014-15, 73 in 2015-16, and 67 in 2016-17). Golden State's success also extended to the postseason. The Warriors became the fourth franchise to win three-or-more titles in the span of four seasons, joining the Boston Celtics (1959-69), Chicago Bulls (1991-93, 1996-98) and Los Angeles Lakers (1949-54, 1985-88, 2000-02). In the 2017 postseason, Golden State posted a 16-1 (.941) record, the best single-season playoff record in league history that included a playoff-record 15-game win streak.

In 2014-15, Kerr engineered the most successful campaign of any first-year coach in NBA history en route to Golden State's first title in 40 years, posting a then-franchise-record 67 victories and establishing NBA records for most wins and highest winning percentage (67-15, .817) by a first-year head coach. The Warriors saw a 16-game improvement in 2014-15 over the previous season (51-31 in 2013-14), an NBA record for the biggest improvement by a 50-win team in league history. Kerr followed his inaugural campaign by winning the 2015-16 NBA Coach of the Year Award for leading the Warriors to an NBA-record 73 regular-season wins in 2015-16 (73-9, .890), eclipsing the previous mark of 72 set by a Chicago Bulls squad in 1995-96 that featured Kerr in a reserve role. In addition to the single-season wins record, the Warriors set new league marks for single-season road wins (34), consecutive wins to begin a season (24) and consecutive regular-season home wins (54).

Originally named to the position on May 19, 2014, Kerr is the 25th head coach in franchise history and the 20th since the team moved to the West Coast in 1962. He is the fourth Warriors coach to win an NBA title, joining Eddie Gottlieb (1947), George Senesky (1956) and Alvin Attles (1975). He is also just the third coach in franchise history to be named Coach of the Year, joining Alex Hannum (1963-64) and Don Nelson (1991-92). Twice Kerr and his coaching staff were named to coach the Western Conference All-Star Team (2015, 2017). During the 2021-22 season, Kerr was among the 15 Greatest Coaches in NBA History as part of the league's 75th Anniversary Season, joining Red Auerbach, Larry Brown, Chuck Daly, Red Holzman, Phil Jackson, K.C. Jones, Don Nelson, Gregg Popovich, Jack Ramsay, Pat Riley, Doc Rivers, Jerry Sloan, Erik Spoelstra and Lenny Wilkens. Kerr was been awarded the Professional Basketball Writers Association's (PBWA) Rudy Tomjanovich Award a record three times (2015, 2018, 2024).

Kerr owns 37 years of NBA experience as a player (15), coach (11), television analyst (eight) and front office executive (three). As president of basketball operations and general manager of the Phoenix Suns (2007-10), the club posted a 155-91 (.630) record and earned a pair of playoff berths, including a trip to the 2010 Western Conference Finals.

Having been on teams that made the playoffs in 13 of his 15 seasons, while playing in 11 of those (missed other two due to injury), Kerr is one of only 26 players in NBA history to win five championships, earning three rings with Chicago and two with San Antonio. A key reserve for Chicago during the team's three-peat championship run from 1996-98, Kerr famously hit the game-winning, title-clinching shot in Game 6 of the 1997 NBA Finals. He won his fourth consecutive championship in 1999 with the San Antonio Spurs to become one of only two non-Boston Celtics to win four-straight NBA titles (joining Frank Saul, 1951-54). His fifth ring came in his second stint with the Spurs during his final NBA campaign in 2002-03.

The NBA's all-time three-point percentage leader, having converted on 45.4 percent (726-of-1599) of his attempts from long range, Kerr amassed career averages of 6.0 points, 1.8 assists and 1.2 rebounds in 910 regular-season games with the Phoenix Suns, Cleveland Cavaliers, Orlando Magic, Chicago Bulls, San Antonio Spurs (twice) and Portland Trail Blazers.

Kerr was originally selected by the Phoenix Suns in the second round (50th overall) of the 1988 NBA Draft out of the University of Arizona, where he capped his collegiate career as a senior in 1988 by helping lead the Wildcats to their first Final Four appearance. An All-Pac 10 guard in both 1986 and 1988, he remains the school's career leader in three-point field goal percentage (57.3 percent).

During his playing career, Kerr played for some of the most successful coaches in the history of the game, including Phil Jackson, Popovich, Lenny Wilkens, Cotton Fitzsimmons and Lute Olson. Born in Beirut, Lebanon, and raised in Pacific Palisades, Calif., Kerr was a ballboy in 1978 and 1979 at UCLA where his late father, Malcolm, was a professor.

As a broadcaster, Kerr has served two different four-year stints as a game analyst on TNT's award-winning NBA coverage. In addition to a full slate of regular-season games, he also worked TNT's marquee events, including the NBA All-Star Game, playoffs and conference finals. During his most recent stint in broadcasting, beginning in 2010, Kerr also served as an analyst for NCAA Tournament and Final Four coverage on Turner Sports and CBS.

Kerr earned a degree in general studies from Arizona with an emphasis in history, sociology and English in 1988. He is an advocate for commonsense gun safety laws, supporting such organizations as the Brady campaign, Live Free in Oakland, Sandy Hook Promise, March For Our Lives, and Giffords. Kerr also helps fundraise for Oakland Promise, an initiative launched by Mayor Libby Schaaf and the Oakland Unified School District in 2016 that aims to triple the number of Oakland high school graduates who complete college by the year 2024. In October 2014, Steve and Margot Kerr committed $1 million to the University of Arizona to assist with the McKale Memorial Center renovation and future academic facility enhancements.

Born on September 27, 1965, Steve and his wife, Margot, have two sons, Nicholas and Matthew, and one daughter, Madeleine. Nicholas received his degree from the University of San Diego in 2015 and completed his graduate studies at the University of California, Berkeley, where he played as a walk-on for the Bears' basketball team for one season. Nicholas is the head coach for the Warriors G League affiliate Santa Cruz Warriors, after serving as an assistant video coordinator for Golden State in 2020-21 and as an assistant coach at Santa Cruz in 2022-23. THE PERMANENTE MEDICAL GROUP

Christopher Lehman, MD, is an Orthopedic Surgeon who specializes in Arthroscopic and Sports Medicine surgeries. Working at Kaiser Permanente since 2005, he has been a Northern California referral source for complex open and arthroscopic treatment of knee, ankle, elbow and shoulder injuries. Having worked with various professional athletes and sports teams during his career including the Pittsburgh Penguins, the Santa Cruz Warriors, and many colleges, Dr. Lehman understands that recovery takes a team approach. He works closely with patients, trainers and physical therapists to tailor the treatment plan for each individual patient. He earned his medical degree at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia before completing a residency at the University of California, San Francisco and a fellowship at Orthopedic Research of Virginia in Richmond. Since July 2019, Dr. Lehman has been the Head Orthopedic Surgeon for the Golden State Warriors.

CalHOPE COURAGE AWARD SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

Scholarships awarded through June 2026

"Opening up about my own struggles taught me that none of us are truly alone. Talking to someone—whether it's a coach, a teammate, a friend, or a counselor—can be the first step toward healing. That's why I'm proud to support the CalHOPE Courage Award Scholarship Program, which shows young athletes that courage comes from sharing your story and seeking help."

BUSINESS OPERATIONS

BRANDON SCHNEIDER

PRESIDENT & CHIEF OPERATING OFFICER

The 2025-26 NBA season marks Brandon Schneider's 24th season with Golden State, and his fifth as the organization's president and chief operating officer. In this role, Schneider reports to Co-Executive Chairman & CEO Joe Lacob and Co-Executive Chairman Peter Guber and oversees all business-related operations for the enterprise, which includes the Golden State Warriors, Golden State Valkyries, Santa Cruz Warriors, Golden State Entertainment, Thrive City and Chase Center. Schneider was promoted to his current role in April of 2021, following three years as the chief revenue officer.

In his tenure as president and chief operating officer, Golden State has elevated both the organization and the sports business industry to new heights. Valued at over $9 billion – the second most valuable professional sports team in the world – the Warriors have continued to lead the NBA in all major revenue metrics, including ticket sales, partnerships, viewership ratings and merchandise. The Valkyries, in their inaugural season, are ranked as the most valuable WNBA team at $500 million and have continued to set revenue records across the league in ticket sales, partnerships and merchandise. In Santa Cruz, the organization's NBA G League affiliate has been recognized as Franchise of the Year, the league's most prestigious award, four times (2017-18, 2020-21, 2021-22, 2023-24). In 2022, Golden State launched an original content arm, Golden State Entertainment, a first-of-its-kind for a professional sports franchise. Since opening in 2019, Chase Center has welcomed over five million fans at more than 450 events across sports, music, comedy, theater, family entertainment, and more, generating an estimated $4.2 billion for the San Francisco economy. Thrive City, the 11-acre district surrounding Chase Center, features over a dozen unique restaurant, bar and retail options as well as free programming year-round for the community.

In his three years as chief revenue officer, Schneider was responsible for strategic planning and execution related to all of the organization's sales and activation efforts at Chase Center, including tickets, suites, and corporate partnerships. He oversaw the team's digital and marketing teams as well as philanthropic efforts led by the community relations group and the Golden State Community Foundation, of which he sits on the board. He managed the team's retail business both online and at Chase Center, and worked to create the best overall fan experience at the venue. Schneider also oversaw the Santa Cruz Warriors. Prior to assuming his role as chief revenue officer, Schneider served four seasons as senior vice president, business development; two seasons as group vice president, ticket sales and services; and three seasons as vice president, ticket sales and services. Schneider originally joined the Warriors in the summer of 2002 as a season ticket account executive before being promoted to ticket sales manager in June of 2004 and assistant director of ticket sales the following April.

During his tenure, the organization has been recognized with several prestigious awards, including the Warriors being named "Franchise of the Decade" among all professional sports teams by Sports Business Journal in 2019. Additionally, the Warriors became the first professional team to win Sports Business Journal's "Sports Team of the Year" award on multiple occasions (2014 and 2016).

Schneider was named to Sports Business Journal's Power Players list in 2018 after being named to the publication's Forty Under 40 list in 2017. These honors followed Schneider's inclusion on Forty Under 40 lists by Diablo Magazine in 2015 and the San Francisco Business Times in 2016. Schneider was heavily involved with the completion of Chase Center in September 2019, which was named Sports Facility of the Year by Sports Business Journal in 2020 and has received numerous distinctions and industry awards since.

A Bay Area native, Schneider graduated from UCLA in 2001 with a degree in business economics and an accounting minor. He currently serves as vice president of the board for the Golden State Community Foundation and is on the board of the Bay Area Host Committee. Additionally, Schneider is part of the executive committee of the Bay Area Council and is a founding member of the Partnership for San Francisco. A die-hard fan of both the San Francisco 49ers and San Francisco Giants, and an owner of Los Angeles Football Club (LAFC) and Angel City Football Club (ACFC), Schneider lives in Hillsborough with his wife Amanda and their son Tommy.

DONNA DANIELS

GENERAL MANAGER, CHASE CENTER

The 2025-26 NBA season marks Donna Daniels' fourth as Chase Center General Manager, bringing over 30 years of NBA and entertainment experience—including 25 years at the NBA league office—to her role in San Francisco. She reports directly to Warriors President and Chief Operating Officer, Brandon Schneider.

Daniels is responsible for venue operations of Chase Center, including safety and security, guest experiences, events, engineering, facilities, parking and transportation, sustainability, and more.

Over the course of her time with the organization, Daniels has focused on seamlessly running the 18,000+ seat arena post global pandemic with nearly 100 basketball games and hundreds of public-facing events and concerts per year at both Chase Center and Thrive City, the 11-acre district surrounding the venue.

Under Daniels' leadership, Chase Center has attracted world-class events for 2025 such as NBA All-Star 2025, the 2025 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball West Regionals, and tennis' Laver Cup, alongside the debut of the Golden State Valkyries inaugural season. Daniels was a key stakeholder in NBA All-Star 2025 planning, which generated an estimated $429.3 million for the San Francisco Bay Area economy.

Prior to joining Golden State, Daniels served as executive vice president and general manager of the Prudential Center at Harris Blitzer Sports & Entertainment. There, she oversaw all Prudential Center operations, including management of the Grammy Museum Experience at Prudential Center. From 2016-19, she held the title of Harris Blitzer Sports & Entertainment senior vice president of business operations, where she was responsible for all business operations and operational efficiencies. Daniels has held various roles within the NBA League throughout her career, including vice president of strategic initiatives, team marketing business operations, sponsorship development, and GLeague marketing.

BUSINESS OPERATIONS

JOHN BEAVEN

CHIEF REVENUE OFFICER

John Beaven is entering his 23rd season with Golden State, his third as chief revenue officer. In this role, he oversees the Warriors' ticket sales and service, marketing, growth and retention, community relations and public affairs efforts as well as the Golden State Community Foundation, Golden State Sports Academy, and business operations team for the Santa Cruz Warriors, the franchise's NBA G League affiliate.

Prior to being named chief revenue officer, Beaven spent two years as executive vice president of ticket sales and service for the Warriors, where he was responsible for all aspects of the team's ticket and suite efforts, including strategic planning and execution for season ticket and single game initiatives, customer service, and premium suite sales and service efforts.

Beaven has guided the Warriors' ticket sales and service team to a franchise-record sellout streak of 565 games, dating back to December 2012, which ranks third among active NBA sellout streaks, and sixth all-time. Additionally, the Warriors have renewed more than 90% of their season ticket members for the 11th consecutive season.

Under Beaven's leadership, the Golden State Community Foundation announced a 2024-25 season slate of $3.65 million in grants to 69 nonprofits working to improve educational equity in the Bay Area, the most in a single year since the Foundation's inception in 2012. Additionally, the Foundation operates two Generation Thrive locations, one at the Sephora Performance Center in Oakland and one at Thrive City, to serve and support Bay Area educators through a variety of health and wellness programming and resources. The Golden State Community Foundation has surpassed $48 million in impact to support education.

During the pandemic, Beaven guided the Warriors sales and service teams to think outside the box, navigating building capacity challenges, fan communication regarding health and safety, and season ticket and suite lease logistics. He played a critical role in Operation Dub Nation, a task force that rolled out a first-of-its-kind testing program, requiring all fans to show proof of a negative test before venue entry. The plan included mailing FDA-approved, at-home, molecular COVID-19 tests to fans, in addition to allowing on-site testing.

Leading up to opening Chase Center, Beaven played a key role in the creation and implementation of the team's new, innovative membership program, and oversaw the successful transition of the team's season ticket holder base from Oakland Arena to Chase Center. Additionally, Beaven led efforts to launch SuiteXchange, an industry-first authentic and verified suite resale marketplace. In addition to his ticketing responsibilities, Beaven was key in planning and executing the 2018 NBA Championship parade.

Prior to being promoted senior vice president, Beaven served as the Warriors' vice president of ticket sales and service for four seasons, previously serving as the executive director of ticket sales, including in the summer of 2013 when the team surpassed 14,000 season ticket holders for the first time in franchise history. Previously, he also served as the team's director of group sales for three seasons, when he helped double the department's annual sales numbers and managed to eclipse the league benchmark of 3,000 departmental group tickets sold per game for the 2009-10 season. He originally joined the organization in 2003 as a season ticket account executive before being named group sales manager two years later.

A native of London, England, Beaven spent his childhood in New York City and Sacramento, Calif., before receiving his bachelor's degree in general biology from the University of California, San Diego in 2002. Beaven has a daughter, Sara, and currently resides in San Francisco, Calif., with his wife, Tarah, their son, Foster, and daughter, Starling.

MIKE KITTS

CHIEF COMMERCIAL OFFICER

Mike Kitts is entering his 14th season with Golden State and his third as chief commercial officer. In his current role, Kitts oversees all Warriors and Valkyries partnership sales, development, and insights teams, as well as the organizations' premium sales and service and private events groups. Additionally, Kitts oversees operation of Golden State Entertainment, a first-of-its-kind original content arm.

The Warriors have ranked first in the NBA in partnerships revenue annually since 2017, in suites revenue since 2019, and became the first team to break the $100 million barrier in partnership revenue in a single season in 2019-20, once again leading the league in corporate partnership revenue. In their inaugural season, the Valkyries lead the WNBA in partnerships and suite sales and secured nine Founding Partners, including marquee jersey partners with Kaiser Permanente and Chase.

Prior to his current role, Kitts spent two years as executive vice president partnerships, where he was responsible for all partner strategy and revenue across all company-owned properties at that time, including the Golden State Warriors (NBA), Santa Cruz Warriors (G League), Golden Guardians (League of Legends), Warriors Gaming Squad (NBA 2K League) and Chase Center. Additionally, Kitts led the partnership vision and development for both Chase Center and Thrive City.

Under Kitts' guidance, the organization created a robust portfolio of Chase Center Founding Partners, which includes Accenture, Adobe, Google Cloud, Hewlett Packard Enterprise (HPE), Kaiser Permanente, Oracle, PepsiCo, Rakuten, RingCentral, Ticketmaster, United Airlines and Verizon, along with naming rights partner JPMorgan Chase.

In 2022, Kitts played a crucial role in leading the organization's efforts to re-sign Rakuten as the team's badge partner, facilitating the NBA's most extensive multi-year partnership renewal. Through strategic planning and execution, Kitts and his team have been a critical component of Rakuten's explosive brand recognition amongst U.S. consumers through the Warriors jersey badge, derived from broadcast, digital and social media impressions.

Kitts joined the Warriors in 2012 as director of partnership sales, before being promoted to vice president in 2017 and senior vice president of partnerships in 2019. His resume includes over 20 years of marketing and sports experience, with stints at Learfield Sports and the San Diego Sports Commission, where he was responsible for business development.

The San Diego native earned his bachelor's degree in business management at Lynn University and his MBA from the sports management program at San Diego State University. He received the honor of "Distinguished Alumni of the Year" at both universities. Kitts currently sits on the board of the Boys & Girls Clubs of San Francisco, having previously served on the board for the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

GOLDEN STATE SPORTS ACADEMY

Golden State Sports Academy, powered by Rakuten, formerly known as Warriors Basketball Academy, which encompasses the organization's youth basketball efforts across the Bay Area, has hosted over 85,000 participants since its inception in 2000. A member of the Jr. NBA's Flagship Network, Golden State Sports Academy has been deemed one of 18 best-in-class youth basketball organizations that share the Jr. NBA's vision for how the game should be taught. Operating out of numerous facilities throughout the Bay Area, including the Sephora Performance Center – the practice facility of the Golden State Valkyries, Golden State Sports Academy utilizes state-of-the-art performance technology along with high quality instruction to help their participants strive to fulfill their goals on the court. In addition, Valkyries Basketball Camp will be offered in Sacramento and the Central Valley.

In addition to programming in Oakland, Golden State Sports Academy continues to impact the Bay Area youth basketball landscape by facilitating longstanding programs, Golden State Basketball Camp, Valkyries Basketball Camp and the Jr Golden State Basketball League, throughout the region.

Golden State Sports Academy has grown into the largest basketball camp program in the NBA/WNBA and has attracted over 85,000 youth from six different continents to participate in hundreds of sessions in more than 40 cities around the Bay Area, plus a camp on Oahu, Hawaii. In addition to campers from throughout the U.S., the team has hosted youth from six different continents - Africa, Asia, Australia, Europe, North America and South America. During the summer of 2025, Golden State Basketball Camp conducted in-person summer sessions registering nearly 4,000 youth from 26 different states and 16 different countries including Taiwan, Mexico, Canada, China, Japan, Italy, Republic of Armenia, Germany, Spain, Singapore, Costa Rica, United Kingdom, Turkey, France, Panama, and the United States. A handful of Warriors Basketball Camp alumni have gone on to play professionally both in the NBA and overseas. Former Warriors forward Juan Toscano-Anderson is the third former participant to play in the NBA, the first to have played for the Golden State Warriors and the first to win an NBA Championship.

This past summer, Golden State Sports Academy held 40 camp sessions in Bay Area and Northern California including two overnight camps in Oakland. The schedule was highlighted by a session at Thrive City, the community gathering space surrounding Chase Center, Chase Center – the home of the Golden State Warriors and Valkyries and four sessions (two overnight sessions) at the Sephora Performance Center – the practice facility of the Golden State Valkyries that integrated Shoot 360 technology. The two overnight camps featured appearances by Warriors forward Trayce Jackson-Davis, guard Brandin Podziemski and forward Gui Santos. This marks the fourth consecutive year the team has hosted an overnight camp.

Entering its 25th season, what was founded as the Junior Warriors Basketball League now has a new name and new opportunities! The Golden State Warriors and Valkyries have joined forces to form the Jr Golden State Basketball League, a program designed to encourage participation in basketball and assist local youth by teaching teamwork, commitment, discipline, and sportsmanship. The Jr Golden State Basketball League includes reversible jerseys and shorts, headbands, certificates of participation and ticket options for Warriors and Valkyries home games. The league also offers a Coaches Clinic, featuring members of the Warriors/Valkyries coaching staff, for all volunteer coaches participating in the program. Over 250,000 Bay Area youth have been able to participate in the Jr Golden State Basketball League since its inception in 2000.

The Sephora Performance Center in Oakland provides youth access to a skill development and performance enhancement training space. The features of the facility include programs such as private training, skill development classes, and birthday workouts in addition to daily access via Shoot 360, the newly installed performance technology that allows participants the ability to test, train and track every component of their workout. Shooting courts allow participants to get instant performance analytics in real time via live shot charts showing shot arc, shot depth and left/right differential, while the skill courts provide interactive ball-handling. Passing simulators engage participants by tracking and grading their performance. To complement the technology, the Golden State Sports Academy staff engages and assists with participants during their workouts. Golden State Sports Academy was the first youth basketball program in the NBA to feature Shoot 360 technology.

On October 5, 2023, the Women's National Basketball Association (WNBA) announced that the Golden State Warriors were awarded a WNBA expansion franchise, which will begin play in the 2025 WNBA season. The team will play home games at Chase Center in San Francisco and marks the WNBA's first expansion franchise since 2008.

"The Bay Area is the perfect market for a WNBA team, and we are thrilled this opportunity has finally come to fruition," said Warriors Co-Executive Chairman & CEO Joe Lacob. "We have been interested in a WNBA franchise for several years, due in part to the rich history of women's basketball in the Bay Area, and believe now is the ideal time to execute that vision and build upon that legacy. The WNBA continues to solidify itself as the preeminent women's professional basketball league, and we look forward to supporting the best women's basketball players in the world and our team starting in 2025."

The Valkyries, the 13th WNBA franchise, became the first team in women's sports history to reach 17,000 season ticket deposits when they reached the milestone in September 2024.

The Warriors' Oakland Facility, which served as the Golden State Warriors' practice facility and front office from 1997-2019, will be the WNBA team's headquarters, housing a world-class practice facility and the team's front office staff.

"We are thrilled about expanding to the Bay Area and bringing the WNBA to a region with passionate basketball fans and a strong history of supporting women's basketball," said WNBA Commissioner Cathy Engelbert. "Joe Lacob, Peter Guber and their leadership team know how to build and operate a world-class organization, as witnessed by the immense success the Warriors' franchise has enjoyed from both a business and basketball perspective over the last decade. Their interest in joining the WNBA family is yet another sign of the league's growth potential."

The 2024 WNBA regular season delivered record-breaking viewership, attendance and digital engagement as the league continues to drive business growth and results. The offseason featured the most-viewed WNBA Draft since 2004, followed by the most-watched regular season in 21 years.

WNBA Golden State saw over 2,000 season ticket deposits in the first five hours following the announcement.

- Between October 5 (full launch day) and October 6 (full day after launch) on Instagram, WNBA Golden State had more engagements on Instagram than any NBA team except the Warriors and Lakers. (Per WNBA Golden State Sprout data / Zoomph NBA team data).
- Between October 5 (full launch day) and October 6 (full day after launch) on X, WNBA Golden State had more impressions than 24 of the 30 NBA teams (Per WNBA Golden State Sprout / Zoomph NBA team data).

growing health in kids

By just eight weeks old, a baby can tell the difference between his mom and dad.

The first five years are the most neurologically significant in our lives. And babies have a separate physiological response to dads: studies show babies whose dads played bigger roles in their day-to-day activities were more socially responsive, had higher development scores, and were more resilient when faced with stress (all by the age of two).

At the Steve Nash Foundation, we put the science of early childhood neurodevelopment to work in Let's Talk Dads, part of our Starting Five platform, educating and empowering dads to use their words, actions and faces to foster brain development in their babies and shape their futures. Because everyone has a role to play.

HISTORY
THE PHILLY YEARS

PHILADELPHIA Warriors

Before moving West and staking claim in the Bay Area, the Warriors called Philadelphia their home for 16 memorable years.

From the inception of the Basketball Association of America (the predecessor to the National Basketball Association) in 1946, to the conclusion of the 1961-62 season, the Philadelphia Warriors dazzled their fans and produced legendary players like Wilt Chamberlain, Joseph Fulks, Paul Arizin and Neil Johnston en route to amassing a record of 558-545 and capturing two NBA championships.

Expanding on the National Basketball League of the 1930's and 40's, The Basketball Association of America began play in November 1946 and consisted of 11 teams and two divisions. The Philadelphia Warriors took residence in the Eastern Division, and under the guidance of head coach Eddie Gottlieb wasted no time in claiming the first ever title, beating the Chicago Stags in the championship series (4-1). The inaugural Warriors were led by "Jumping" Joe Fulks, who followed up his league-leading scoring average (23.2) in the 60-game regular season by averaging 22.2 points in the playoffs, including a game-high 37 points in Game 1 of The Finals.

The league prospered and grew to 17 teams and was renamed the National Basketball Association prior to the 1949-50 season. The Warriors claimed their second title in 1956, beating the Fort Wayne Pistons in a five-game series (4-1). In doing so, they completed one of the most dramatic turnarounds in NBA history, going from last place in the Eastern Division in 1954-55 to the penthouse one year later. Former Warriors player George Senesky, in his first full season as head coach, directed a well-balanced squad to an NBA-best 45-27 record, as every member of the starting five averaged double-figure scoring. Leading the way were NBA All-Stars Arizin (24.2 points and 7.4 rebounds) and Neil Johnston (22.1 points, a league-leading .457 field goal percentage and 12.5 rebounds). In the championship series against Fort Wayne, Arizin averaged 29.0 points. In the deciding fifth game, Joseph Graboski led the way with a team-high 29 points.

In the 1959 NBA Draft, the Warriors chose Philadelphia native Wilt Chamberlain out of Kansas University as a territorial selection. The 7-1, 275-pound giant with tremendous power and grace would soon change the face of the game forever. As a rookie, Chamberlain averaged 37.6 points and 27.0 rebounds a game, shattering previous league highs. His powerful slam dunks and unprecedented statistics drew a record amount of fans not yet seen by the young league. Chamberlain coasted to the league's Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player awards. With Arizin, Woody Sauldsberry, Tom Gola and Guy Rodgers surrounding the superstar center, rookie Head Coach Neil Johnston and the Warriors cruised into the Eastern Division Finals, where they fell to the powerhouse Boston Celtics. This series gave birth to one of the NBA's greatest rivalries, the clash of Chamberlain versus Bill Russell.

During the 1960-61 season, Chamberlain's numbers and reputation continued to grow, drawing huge crowds wherever the Warriors traveled. He averaged 38.4 points and hauled in 27.2 rebounds during this memorable season. The Warriors added a gritty, hard-nosed rookie guard by the name of Alvin Attles to the squad and returned to the playoffs only to be knocked off by the Syracuse Nationals.

The following season would be a record-setting year for "Wilt the Stilt." His 50.4 scoring average and 4,029 total points are records that have yet to be challenged. Chamberlain's season was highlighted by a performance in Hershey, Pa. on March 2, 1962, when he scored an incredible 100 points in a game against the New York Knicks.

Riding the backs of Chamberlain, Arizin, Attles and rookie Tom Meschery, the Warriors finished with a 49-31 record and met the Celtics again in the Eastern Division Finals. In a seven-game battle that saw Chamberlain swarmed by Russell and Celtic double and triple-teams, the Warriors lost (109-107) in Game 7. It would be the team's last game as the Philadelphia Warriors.

LOGO HISTORY & HALL OF FAMERS

In unveiling their new logo on June 17, 2010, the Golden State Warriors drew on the franchise's rich Bay Area history, creating a modern version of the team's most popular logos and uniforms from years gone by to simultaneously salute the team's past and serve as a link to the exciting prospects of the organization's future. Prior to the 2019-20 season, the logo was updated with a more accurate portrayal of the Bay Bridge and custom font.

A silhouette of the Eastern Span of the Bay Bridge is the focal point of the team's primary logo design. This Bay Bridge rendering as the centerpiece of the team's new look is a direct spin-off of "The City" jersey, which the club wore from 1966-71. To this day, "The City" logo remains one of the most popular emblems in the history of professional sports.

The depiction of the Bay Bridge also serves as the link between the Warriors' original Bay Area home in San Francisco, where the team arrived from Philadelphia 50 years ago returns for the first time since 1971, and its former home in Oakland, where the team played its home games at Oracle Arena (formerly the Oakland Coliseum Arena) for 47 of the last 48 seasons (the Warriors spent one year in San Jose in 1996-97).

The colors of the new logo and branding elements are Warriors Royal Blue and California Golden Yellow. These two colors have been the most prevalent in the team's Bay Area uniform history, appearing as the dominant scheme in four of the last five decades since the team's arrival on the West Coast in 1962.

The current Warriors logo, which was the team's first major branding and identity change since 1997, helped mark the beginning of a new era for one of the NBA's longest tenured franchises. A new era that began, appropriately enough, with a tip of the cap to the team's past.

RETIRED NUMBERS

13

Wilt Chamberlain averaged 41.5 points and 25.1 rebounds in five seasons with the Philadelphia and San Francisco Warriors. Chamberlain was named both Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player in 1959-60 and earned four MVP awards over the course of his career. He owns numerous franchise and NBA records, including most points (100) and rebounds (55) in a game, and is the only player ever to average over 50 points per game in a single season (50.4 in 1961-62). He was inducted into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in 1979 and his number was retired by the Warriors on December 29, 1999.

TOM MESCHERY

Tom Meschery played six of his 10 NBA seasons with the Philadelphia and San Francisco Warriors, averaging 12.9 points and 8.5 rebounds per game with the team. The 1963 NBA All-Star also appeared in 39 playoff games with the Warriors, averaging 16.3 points. His interest in poetry and literature earned him the nickname of "Renaissance Man" among his Warriors teammates, but his ferociousness and intensity on the court made him known by others as "The Mad Russian." He was the first Warrior to have his number retired on October 13, 1967.

ALVIN ATTLES

Alvin Attles joined the Philadelphia Warriors in 1960 as the club's fifth-round draft choice and has been affiliated with the franchise ever since, a span of 60 years that represents the longest stint with a single franchise in NBA history. In 11 seasons as a player he averaged 8.9 points over 711 career games. He is the franchise leader in coaching victories with 557 and guided the Warriors to the 1975 NBA Championship during his 13-year run as the team's head coach. Attles was honored by the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame with the John W. Bunn Lifetime Achievement Award in 2014 and later inducted into the Hall of Fame as a contributor in 2019. His number was retired on February 10, 1977.

Chris Mullin averaged 20.1 points over 13 seasons with the Warriors, appearing in more games (807) and recording more steals (1,360) than any player in franchise history. The five-time NBA All-Star averaged 26.5 points in 1988-89, the first of five consecutive campaigns in which he averaged 25-plus points. Mullin, alongside Tim Hardaway and Mitch Richmond, anchored the high-scoring trio known as Run TMC, which spent two seasons together from 1989-91. He was also a member of the fabled Dream Team in 1992, capturing one of his two Olympic gold medals. He was inducted into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in 2011 and his number was retired by the Warriors on March 19, 2012.

RICK BARRY

Rick Barry averaged 25.6 points during his eight years with the Warriors, earning NBA All-Star accolades in each of those seasons. The 1966 NBA Rookie of the Year earned All-NBA honors six times with the club and led the league in scoring with 35.6 points per game in 1966-67. He averaged 26.9 points in 66 playoff games and was named NBA Finals MVP in Golden State's 4-0 sweep of the Washington Bullets in the 1975 NBA Finals. He was inducted into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in 1987 and his number was retired by the Warriors on March 18, 1988.

NATE THURMOND

Nate Thurmond averaged 17.4 points and 16.9 rebounds during his 11 seasons with the Warriors, making seven All-Star Game appearances. Named to the NBA All-Defensive Team five times with the Warriors, Thurmond ranks as the team's all-time leader in minutes played (30,735) and total rebounds (12,771). "Big Nate" appeared in an additional 54 postseason games with the Warriors, averaging 15.4 points and 16.6 rebounds in those contests. He was inducted into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in 1985 and his number was retired by the Warriors on March 8, 1978.

Andre Iguodala helped the Warriors make six NBA Finals appearances, winning four NBA championships (2015, 2017, 2018, 2022). The 2015 NBA Finals Most Valuable Player, Iguodala earned two All-Defensive Team honors (2010-11 and 2013-14), one All-Star nod (2012) and a spot on the 2004-05 NBA All-Rookie First Team in his 19-season NBA career. Iguodala became the first player to win a Finals MVP despite not starting every game of the series.

Iguodala appeared in 1,231 career games (784 starts), averaging 11.3 points, 4.9 rebounds, 4.2 assists, 1.4 steals in 32.1 minutes per game with four teams (Philadelphia, Denver, Miami and Golden State). With the Warriors, Iguodala appeared in 452 career games (84 starts), averaging 6.9 points, 3.8 rebounds, 3.4 assists, 1.1 steals in 26.0 minutes per game in eight seasons.

As a Veteran, when someone raises their hand for help, you're often one of the first ones to respond. But it's also okay to get help for yourself. Maybe you want or need assistance with employment, stress, finances, mental health or finding the right resources. No matter what it is, you earned it. And there's no better time than right now to ask for it. Don't wait. Reach out.

ChildFund®

The promise inside Hazel is greater than the poverty around her.

Hazel doesn't know what she wants to be when she grows up, and that's just fine. At age 11, her job is to play, grow and learn. But for kids like her in the world's poorest places, poverty gets in the way.

ChildFund works in 24 countries to make sure children grow up healthy, educated, self-sufficient and safe, wherever they were born.

Thanks to generous supporters, our programs help children fulfill their potential. That's been our promise to them for 80-plus years.
